Working with Neighborhoods
John L. McKnight, Director of Community Studies, Center for Urban Affairs & Policy Research, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois

10:15 - 11:45 a.m.  Workshops (Select on registration form.)

A. Conducting Capacity Assessments in Neighborhoods
John L. McKnight, Director of Community Studies, Center for Urban Affairs & Policy Research, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois

Many neighborhood programs are based upon "needs assessments" that identify deficiencies and problems. An alternative involves a focus upon the capabilities and skills of local people. This session will demonstrate how to identify local community capacities and create methods for their development.

B. Not In My Back Yard - Waste Management
Joe Heilmich, Extension Associate, Community & Natural Resources, Ohio Cooperative Extension Service, The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio

One of the biggest barriers to education about solid waste, and to the development of good solid waste policy for cities is the attitude of client groups. Fear of what a landfill, recycling center, incinerator, or compost site might bring to a community keeps the development of good waste management practice at a snail's pace. As educators, our role in the urban community can be to explore new options. This session will explore strategies for education and provide some innovative educational games and methods for urban Extension educators to use.

C. Financing Extension in the Next Century - Raising Money from Individuals
John M. Crowley, Director of Special Gifts, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York

This workshop will focus on developing a basic understanding of fundraising techniques for the layman. A general overview will be followed by indepth discussion and practical application.

D. Working with the Big City Power Structure
Jerome M. Ziegler, Professor, Human Service Studies, College of Human Ecology, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York

Participants will learn how to identify urban power structures and how to influence power structures in order to garner support for extension programming. Tips on how to involve the power structure in urban extension will also be shared.

E. Administrative Roundtable
James D. Oliver, Associate Director, Urban Programs, University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, Chicago, Illinois

This session will focus on the identification of key management issues crucial in the cultivation, support and administration of Extension programs in urban communities in this decade. This workshop will be limited to conference participants who have an administrative assignment.

F. Working in the War Zone
Renee Moore-Kralio, Urban 4-H Agent, Cooperative Extension Service, Oklahoma State University, Tulsa Oklahoma

When Extension develops programs for inner city youth, residing in government subsidized housing, environmental and social barriers may occur. This workshop will discuss how to effectively implement programs for low income families. An overview of urban youth programs conducted in Tulsa, Oklahoma will also be shared.

G. Programming for Success
Carla E. Hauge, County Extension Agent 4-H, Ohio Cooperative Extension Service, The Ohio State University, Toledo, Ohio

Extension educators are challenged to design programs which are relevant, accessible, and effective to their audiences. This session will help you strengthen your "people skills" by exploring effective volunteer recruitment techniques, building community coalitions, and program packaging.

12:00 - 1:00 p.m.  Networking Lunch

Exchange experiences with other Big City educators. Select your area of interest on the registration form. Bring program materials to share.
Wednesday, April 17, 1991

1:30 - 2:30 p.m.  General Session

Cultural Diversity as a Plus to Urban Extension Programming
Samuel Betances, Professor of Sociology, Northeastern Illinois
University, Chicago, Illinois

3:00 - 4:30 p.m.  Workshops (Select on registration form)

H. Leadership Development in the Black Community --
A Participatory Workshop
George R. Cotton, Sr., Urban Youth Specialist, and Kay Gasen, Community & Economic Development Specialist, University of Missouri
Extension, St. Louis, Missouri

Participants will explore models of leadership development and gain a better understanding of programs for Black leadership. Concepts and issues which will be discussed include Extension’s role in conducting leadership programs, how Black leadership is determined, and why it is necessary to develop leadership within the Black community.

I. Extension Education on Natural Resources in the Urban Environment
Steve Laursen, Natural Resources Program Leader, Minnesota Extension Service, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota

Attendees will learn the scope of natural resources programming possibilities in urban areas, how to integrate natural resources programming into other Extension programs, and how to use natural resources programs to improve communication between urban and rural audiences.

J. Extension Research and Innovative Projects in Big Cities

Extension educators from big cities will present a 5 minute overview of their innovative projects or ongoing research. Participants will receive a description of the projects and have an opportunity to share their colleagues successes.

K. Financing Extension in the Next Century - Raising Money from Individuals (repeat of a.m. workshop #C)

L. Adoption and Adaptation -- Two Different Approaches
Marilyn Normant, Extension Adviser Youth, University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, Chicago, Illinois

The Chicago 4-H program has adapted many of the structures and formats of traditional youth development programs, after examining the underlying values upon which 4-H was built. This workshop will explore the transition which has led to collaborations with agencies, human development professionals and government. The goal to move Chicago 4-H to more comprehensive programs in targeted communities will also be discussed.

M. Empowering Neighborhoods: Extension Can Make A Difference
Sharon Laux, Environmental Design Specialist, University of Missouri
Extension, St. Louis, Missouri

This workshop will identify successful strategies for working with neighborhood associations and community resources which support Extension’s efforts. The Empowering Neighborhoods workshop series will be shared.

N. Addressing Metropolitan Issues in Water Quality/Quantity
Mary Kaye Merwin, Executive Director, Nassau County, Cornell
Cooperative Extension, Cornell University, Plainview, New York

Groundwater Management Education has been made available to 1.3 million people in Nassau County, New York through a grant in excess of $700,000. An interdiscplinary team of Extension agents is accomplishing the program goals. This workshop will share the successes and resources of the program.

General Session Speakers

Samuel Betances is Professor of Sociology at Northeastern Illinois University in Chicago. Dr. Betances has lectured and published extensively in the areas of race and ethnic group relations, issues in multicultural education, religion, media, and humor in urban America. He has consulted with city officials, educators, community groups and private corporations such as AT&T and General Electric in matters related to making our world and society safe for differences. His presentations are insightful, entertaining, and well documented. Dr. Betances' name has become synonymous with building positive synergy through ethnic diversity.

David Sweet is Chairman of the Ohio Board of Regent's Urban University Program Advisory Committee and Dean of the College of Urban Affairs at Cleveland State University. The College has focused its efforts on linking with local officials the College's expertise in the areas of economic development, energy, neighborhood development, data base development, and urban policy. As a member of the Governor's Cabinet, from 1971 to 1975, Dr. Sweet was Director of the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development. He has been active nationally in the economic development profession and has served on the Board of Directors of the American Economic Development Council. Dr. Sweet is presently a member of the Board of the Northeast-Midwest Institute and is also a member of the Development Committee. He has lectured extensively to practitioners throughout the country on a wide variety of economic development issues. Dr. Sweet continues to be active in teaching, research, and he has authored a book.

Violet Malone is Professor and Specialist in Adult and Extension Education, College of Agriculture at University of Illinois in Urbana-Champaign. She is well known as a research based practitioner in the areas of leadership, volunteer management, meeting management, training of trainers, and instructional strategies for adults as learners. Dr. Malone has served as Chair of the National Coalition for Literacy, President of the National and International Association of Adult Education Professionals, and currently serves on the Board of Directors of the State of Illinois United Way. Her seminars have reached three Canadian provinces, eight Caribbean Island nations, Belize, Pakistan, Jordan, Kenya, Zambia and several European nations.
If you're still undecided about attending the 1991 North Central Urban Conference, here's the clincher. The University of Minnesota is offering a course, at the conference, for 2 units of resident graduate credit.

Graduate Credit

AgEd/HEEd 5244
Program Planning for Extension Education: Addressing Urban Extension Issues
Mary Ann Smith, Assistant Professor
Vocational and Technical Education, University of Minnesota
Staff Development Leader, Minnesota Extension Service

This course addresses the special circumstances that Extension faces in designing and delivering educational programs in big cities. Explores demographic, public policy, neighborhood, and diversity trends and issues. Includes case studies, practical strategies and examples.

Tuition is $165 which includes textbook and reading materials. The course will be limited to the first 25 paid registrants. A minimum of 15 students is required in order to offer the course.

Course requirements, in addition to conference participation, include class meetings on Tuesday, April 16, 8:00 - 11:00 a.m. and Thursday, April 18, 1:00 - 4:00 p.m. There will be advance reading and each student will write three short papers. More information will be sent to course registrants three weeks prior to the conference.

Optional Evening Activities

Experience Chicago after dark by joining your colleagues Wednesday, April 17 for a fun-filled evening. Each activity will depart from the Chicago Hilton and Towers. We reserve the right to cancel due to lack of minimum attendance. In this case, a full refund will be made.

I. Barbecue & Blues

Chicago is the city of Blues...where top performers appear in atmospheric clubs singing the blues to the delight of their fans. Pay a visit to one of these greats and become a part of the Blues scene. Your guide will fill you in on the history of the Blues in Chicago and share some interesting sidelights on a few of the "greats." For dinner, enjoy a Barbecue Banquet in the unique atmosphere of a down-home Southern restaurant, complete with mouthwatering Ribs, BBQ Chicken, BBQ Brisket, and all the fixins.
Cost: $54 per person includes dinner & cover charge at Blues club.

II. Ethnic Dine-Around

Chicago is unique in its rich tapestry of ethnic neighborhoods, where each nationality has retained the culture and customs of its homeland. Feast your senses on food and atmosphere in three authentic flavors.
Hors d'oeuvres in Chinatown: Visit the fascinating Chinatown, where pagoda-like buildings line streets with Chinese names. Enjoy a selection of hot, crispy hors d'oeuvres. There will be time for browsing in the colorful shops nearby.
Dinner, Greek Style: Shout "OPAA" as your waiter ignites the flaming saganaki (delicious fried cheese). Savor the excellent main courses for which the restaurant is known, along with a glass of Greek wine.
Dessert and Coffee: Enjoy the sweet taste of Italian pastry and other mouthwatering desserts accompanied by coffee or frothy cappuccino in Chicago's "Little Italy."
Cost: $44 per person includes all ethnic food courses.

III. Second City Comedy Club & Chicago Deep Dish Pizza

Enjoy the combination of two of Chicago's most famous institutions - deep dish pizza and Second City theatre. There's no pizza like "Chicago Style," as you'll discover at one of the city's favorite pizza establishments. Then it's off to Second City, known as the place where celebrities such as Shelly Berman, Mike Nichols and Elaine May, and John Belushi got their start. The accent at Second City is on humor, featuring riotous sketches on politics, current events, and everyday life situations that are certain to keep you laughing.
Cost: $38 per person includes dinner & club admission.

Professional Development Units, PDUs, have been applied for from the American Home Economics Association.
